There are other questions to be rought before the court todaythe defense plea for an early trial, its request for an examination before trial of the calling card and its demand for production of the 1922 grand jury minutes.

Reasons for Severance

These details, however, shrink into insignificance in the light of the battle for and against separate trials.

The clever Simpson wants separate trials for two reasons: (1) Because he believes no Somerset county jury will convict Mrs. Hall, no matter what the evidence is against her and because he believes that this pronounced symnathy for the clergyman's widow might spread to her kinsmen if she was tried with them. (2) Because he wants to try Willie Stevens first and alone, since he knows that a conviction in Willie's case would be easier than in the trials of any of the others.

The special prosecutor believes that Willie's conviction is more apt to be obtained, because the jury trying the eccentric prisoner would know that no verdict of theirs would result in the supreme penalty for the victim.

Willie, because of his weak mentality, would face no more than committment to an institution for the feeble-minded.

And Simpson's reasons for his severance of trial plea are the very reasons why the Hall lawyers want all the defendants tried together.
